

Regarding the Inappropriate Use of the University Network

To Students and Faculty & Staff Members,

The university's information systems and network are intended for educational, research, and administrative purposes. Accessing personal commercial or dating websites, or other inappropriate sites, is prohibited and may seriously harm the university's reputation.

We strongly urge all members of the university community to use the information systems appropriately. Please note that confirmed cases of inappropriate use will be subject to strict disciplinary action in accordance with the university's usage regulations. In addition, if a report or complaint regarding the inappropriate use of the university network is received from outside the university in the future, an investigation will be conducted as necessary.

Observing information ethics is essential to maintaining the university's social credibility. We ask that all members of the university community remain mindful of their role and make every effort to use the information systems appropriately.

Information Systems Division and Office of Legal and Compliance Affairs