

AY 2022 SPRING SEMESTER CLASSES

Face-to-Face Learning Will Resume on Campus

In the AY 2022 spring semester, while prioritizing the health, safety, and lives of our students and staff members, APU has decided to hold classes in-person as a general rule if the BCP Level is at Level 2 or below in order to continue holding academic and extra-curricular activities in the multicultural environment that APU is best known for. However, as there are some students who have been unable to enter the country due to immigration restrictions, or who have underlying health conditions which make attending class in-person difficult, who may receive permission to attend some classes online. If you wish to attend class online, you must complete the necessary application procedures by the deadline and receive permission from the university to attend class online. Please keep this in mind when registering for AY 2022 spring semester classes. Please read below for details on class formats, preventative measures, and other important information.

1. OVERVIEW OF AY 2022 SPRING SEMESTER CLASSES

BASIC APPROACH TO CLASS IMPLEMENTATION

- In principle, courses will be held in person in a classroom. However, there are some students who cannot take classes in person because they have underlying conditions or cannot enter Japan. Such students will be allowed to take classes online on Zoom, excluding some courses. In addition, students who have permission to take classes online while unable to enter Japan can no longer take classes online if they are able to enter Japan mid semester. Please take classes in person after entering Japan.
- In principle, all language and lecture classes during the first week of Spring Semester (April 11 (Mon) – 15 (Fri)) will only be held online to reduce the risk of a cluster outbreak resulting from students travelling from various regions, including large cities, and also because time is needed to assign classrooms appropriately once the number of students in each class is finalized. However, courses that the university has determined are ‘classes that can only be taken in person’ (classes that cannot be taken online) will be held in-person in a classroom.
- The maximum number of students allowed in each classroom will be calculated based on ensuring at least 1 meter of space between students, and will be used to set the size of each class. For this reason, in principle seats in in-person classes will be offered on a first come, first serve basis, and once capacity is reached more students will not be allowed to enter the classroom. If you are not allowed to enter the classroom, please go to an open classroom used for attending online classes and take the class from there. The class format starting from the next week of class will be announced by the course instructor.
- After classes start, in-person classes may also be implemented online only depending on the COVID-19 situation and APU’s BCP Level. Please make the necessary preparations to take classes online in advance. Students should check Campus Terminal and notices from the university regularly.
- The format of classes after Monday, April 18 will be announced in the week of March 7, so please regularly check Campus Terminal for announcements that week.

8. TO ALL STUDENTS

Finally, the university implementing measures is not enough to prevent the spread of COVID-19 on campus. All undergraduate students, graduate students and staff must work together to act in line with the 'new lifestyle' needed to live with coronavirus. At places like universities where many people gather in one place, there is not only a risk to yourself, but also a risk of passing illness to other students and staff. We hope that you will keep this in mind while taking classes during the Spring Semester.
