Pasona has multilingual professional counselors who can provide you advice in both Japanese and English on interview preparation, industry and company research, etc.

I got some tips on how to write a motivation letter!

I was delighted to have the opportunity to get a consultation in English.

I was uncertain about the direction of my career, but through our conversation, I've gained clarity on what I truly want to do!

I thought that interviews could only be done offline. I'm happy to have a practice platform where I can get feedback every time and boost my confidence.

I received feedback and advice on my essay, and it was really helpful!

I now understand the importance of self-analysis. I used to focus solely on studying for exams, but it was great to have the opportunity to reflect on myself and gain new experiences.

Message from the counselors

Japanese companies expect their employees to be able to communicate in Japanese. However, some major global companies may hire foreign nationals even if they cannot speak the language. These companies value English and other foreign language skills. For international students, global companies may be an option for employment, so it is worth focusing on searching for such companies. If you have any inquiries, we are always here to assist you ♪
