The consequences of not cancelling your student visa

If you leave Japan without canceling your student visa, according to the Immigration Control and Refugee Recognition Act, you might be punished. You could also get disadvantage(s) when you enter Japan next.

To avoid such disadvantages and humiliation, you MUST cancel your student visa at airport immigration when you leave Japan.

Canceling your Student Visa

You have a student visa. This visa allows you to attend school at APU. If you graduate from the University, you cannot keep your student visa. You must cancel your visa when you leave Japan.

1. When leaving Japan

You will go through an immigration screening when you are leaving Japan. At this screening, you will submit an Embarkation Card (ED card) to the immigration officer. You can get an ED card at the airport or when you are going through immigration.

2. Do not check any boxes for "Re-entry Permission" on the ED card

The immigration officer may ask if you plan on returning to Japan in the future. Even if you plan to return to APU in the future, you need to cancel your current student visa. Be sure to tell the immigration officer that you want to cancel your visa because you graduated from university.

Because you will cancel your student visa, you will need to get a temporary visa or other new visa if you want to come to Japan after graduation.
