Dr. ANDO Momofuku

In 1958, Dr. ANDO Momofuku invented the world's first instant noodles in the form of Chicken Ramen. A food ready to eat in just two minutes after adding hot water, Chicken Ramen was dubbed "magic ramen," and immediately went on to become an immense hit product.

Furthermore, in 1971, Dr. ANDO invented the world's first noodle-in-a-cup product with Cup Noodles, the culmination of varied wisdom and innovative ideas. The birth of this product prompted instant noodles, which had originated in Japan, to become a global food.

In 2005, Dr. ANDO contributed to the diet of mankind even in space by developing Space Ram, the world's first instant noodles to be consumed in space, at the age of 94. He would continue to possess creative ideas and the tenacity to persevere until the close of his life at the age of 96.

Dr. ANDO graduated from Ritsumeikan University in 1934, and was subsequently conferred the title of Honorary Doctor of that University in 1996.
